

HJR 86 -- State Constitutional Convention

Sponsor: Gatschenberger

Upon voter approval, this constitutional amendment repeals the requirement that, every 20 years during a general election, a ballot measure must be submitted to voters asking whether to call a state constitutional convention to revise and amend the State Constitution and the provisions regarding the procedures of the state constitutional convention process. The only method of amending the State Constitution is the submission, by the General Assembly or the initiative petition process, of an amendment for approval by voters.
